

Why You Need A Family Law Attorney If Your Spouse Has One

Going through a divorce can be an incredibly difficult experience for everybody involved. One of the first things that many people wonder is whether or not they actually need an attorney to get through this process. This is especially important to know if you discover your spouse has secured legal assistance. Salt Lake City divorce attorney at Blue Seven Content is ready to help you get through this, and here we want to discuss why it may be in your best interest to get an advocate of your own for the divorce process.

Why you should consider a divorce attorney if your spouse has one

It is important to recognize that no two divorces are the same, and what works for one person may not work for another. Determining whether or not to hire an attorney depends on the specific factors surrounding your particular case. However, one big sign that you do need a Salt Lake City divorce lawyer is your spouse hiring one.

If your spouse hires a divorce attorney, it will be in your best interest to have a skilled advocate by your side as well. These cases can become incredibly complex, and you do not want to go up against an expert family law practitioner if you have no legal experience.

It all started amicably

One of the first things that many people say when they seek out a divorce lawyer after the process has started is something along the lines of, "But we started the divorce process amicably."

Unfortunately, many couples begin the divorce process with the best intentions only to later realize they have significant disagreements over some of the following:

- Dividing assets and debts
- Establishing a parenting plan
- Deciding on child support
- Alimony payment decisions

Even if a divorcing couple disagrees on one area pertaining to the separation, negative feelings can quickly overwhelm every other issue involved.

Ensuring fair treatment

Divorce is a legal process, and those without any legal training could inadvertently not understand their rights throughout the separation.

- Do you know your rights when it comes to property division?
- Were there any premarital agreements in place?
- Do you know if your spouse has any hidden assets?

If you have any uncertainties but are without legal representation throughout the course of your divorce, you could be left realizing that you have been taken advantage of down the road after the divorce is finalized. It is much easier to handle these situations and complex questions while the divorce is ongoing as opposed to going back and seeking modifications or adjustments later.
